The drowning man is not the only one who voices the distressing cry for help. Business men are often in similar straits. In the following letter note how one big organization has solved its problem of help:

columns.

Though the answers thereto are perhaps not as numerous as I would receive from another paper, the type of men making application is far more superior and just the kind I have been seeking.

Allow me to assure you of my support and patronage in the D. R. STEEL SERVICE CORP. Inc., (Signed) R. A. BREWER, Sales Manager.
